

VICTOR FRANKENSTEIN, MD

Creative genius. High achiever. Author of the best-selling book Doctors & Monsters: Please Don't Confuse Us.

WORK EXPERIENCE

CASTLE LABORATORIES, PRINCIPAL RESEARCHER 1792 TO PRESENT

Conducted various studies synthesizing modern theories between the fields of alchemy and medicine. Developed innovative medical procedures, dramatically transforming the lives of patients.

Key Achievements:

- Successfully manufactured life from 100% recycled materials.
- Produced a net-zero energy facility for all research experiments through utilizing naturally harvested organic range-free electrical current.
- Promoted team building within residents of a small village by unifying them against a common enemy.
- Developed a reliable system for delivering firewood to the blind for one needy family.
- Inspired a new Halloween costume category with profits in excess of $1B annually.

HOBBIES

Reading. Skiing. Burying personal grief in scientific experimentation. Taking long walks in the graveyard at night.

MOTIVATORS

Fresh graves. Electrical storms. Philosophical discussions on what makes us human. Orphan sisters. Any activity effectively combining science and philosophy.

DEAL BREAKERS

Disobedient lab assistants. Cold porridge. Angry villagers. Murdered wives. Arctic cruises. Failed experiments that get out of control. Hearing the word "hideous."

EDUCATION

UNIVERSITY OF INGOLSTADT – DOCTORATE OF MEDICINE, 1794 (EXPECTED)

SKILLS

Sewing/ stitching with impeccable suture technique. Resurrection. Electrical stimulation. Treatment of erectile dysfunction. Identity Crisis Management.